

A THRILLING AFRICAN ADVENTURE: THE NEWEST ALEXA WILLIAMS SUSPENSE NOVEL RELEASES TODAY

MECHANICSBURG, PA (FEBRUARY 16, 2021) – In Sherry Knowlton’s Dead on the Delta, the fifth novel in the popular Alexa Williams suspense series, readers are taken on a hair-raising journey to Botswana. The main character, kick-ass lawyer Alexa Williams, is about to spend four months conducting lion research in the African bush with her boyfriend, Reese. She is looking forward to witnessing the elemental life and death struggle of the wild but never imagines that she will become one of the hunted on the remote Okavango Delta. In the latest Alexa Williams suspense novel, Alexa tangles with elephant poachers and conservation politics on the African continent.

Published by Milford House, an Imprint of Sunbury Press, Inc., Dead on the Delta is now available in print and Kindle editions. The novel can be purchased at most on-line retailers and bookstores including Sunbury Press, Amazon and Barnes and Noble.

In all of her novels, Knowlton uses fiction as a platform to shed light on current social and environmental issues while drawing upon her real-life experiences. Dedicated to thoroughly researching each book, Knowlton often travels great distances to study her subject matter.

“Dead on the Delta was inspired by many safaris I have taken with my family and close friends over the years,” said Knowlton. “To write this book, my husband and I spent a month in Botswana. While in Africa, I interviewed several wildlife researchers and conservation experts to gain a better understanding of poaching issues and efforts to preserve endangered species in the area. As this book demonstrates, I hold a special place in my heart for the people and animals of Africa.”
